

iPhone Camera Grid for Composition

Compiled by Bob Spalding

The Grid mode is used mainly to be sure your photo is straight and to practice good composition.

This Grid looks like a Tic-Tac-Toe screen.

The Grid is also called the “Rule of Thirds”. The rule says that it is better to place your subject off-center rather than in the middle of the photo. The idea is to place your main subject at the intersection of one of the lines.

To turn the Grid on; Go to Settings -> Camera ->Grid

See more information on the Rule of Thirds - see Composition Page – Rule of Thirds.
