

How to hold your Smart Phone

Compiled by Bob Spalding

The most important aspect of Photography is a Sharp Photo.

It does not matter what kind of camera you are using, to get that Sharp photo, you must hold your camera steady.

In order to get a Sharp photo, you must stand correctly as well hold you Smartphone correctly, so you have the most control possible.

This is NOT how to hold your Smartphone while photographing. It is hard to avoid camera shake.

A preferred grip is to hold the phone in your left hand with the little finger tucked under the bottom edge (or do the same if you are using your right hand) and your thumb holding the top of the smartphone.

The other three fingers are then placed along the back of the phone like a horizontal Boy Scott salute. The thumb on the hand holding the camera is folded over the top to hold everything..

Then cradle the left hand with your right hand with your thumb ready to press the photo button.

Tuck both elbows close into your side as close as possible to your ribcage, spread your feet, this stance will help to create a sharp picture.

To really get tack sharp photos, consider using tripod or monopod. Ideally the tripod or monopod should be eye level, so you do not have to bend over.
